London was supposed to be the start to a new life, the city where I marry my fiancé, but then everything comes crashing down in an instant. Now I'm in a new city that doesn't feel like home, far from everything I've ever known.

When a stranger collapses in front of my store, I step in to help. I had no idea that he's a famous movie star, or that he just might be the key to mending my broken heart.

Change has never been my strong suit, and lately, my life feels like a storm I can't escape. Until Lexie. She's my unexpected calm, the one who gives me a sense of normalcy. We become friends but in no time, she becomes the one thing I don't want to lose.

But life doesn't make it easy. Can our friendship turn more?
